

Josh Levi, Vice President for Policy Northern Virginia Technology Council

Josh Levi is Vice President for Policy for the Northern Virginia Technology Council (NVTC), a position he has held since 2002. NVTC is the largest technology council in the nation with about 1,000 member companies employing 200,000 people. It is recognized as the nation's leader in providing the technology community with networking and educational events, public policy advocacy, branding of the region as a major global technology center, and initiatives in targeted business sectors. NVTC's Equal Footing Foundation was founded to encourage and facilitate corporate efforts to give back to the community. The Entrepreneur Center @NVTC fosters technology entrepreneurs and start-ups through a mentoring and advising program, educational courses and events, and opportunities to network with their peers and potential partners, customers and investors.

Since its creation more than 15 years ago, NVTC has grown into the largest technology council in the nation and the leading voice of technology policy in Virginia. As NVTC's Vice President for Policy, Josh Levi is responsible for the organization's public policy advocacy efforts on behalf of Northern Virginia's technology community. He previously served as NVTC Public Policy Manager and later as Director of Policy.

During Mr. Levi's eleven-year tenure at NVTC, the organization has achieved substantial success advancing policies and initiatives related to technology-driven economic development and job creation, science and technology education, workforce development, Internet governance and e-government, new company formation and promotion of entrepreneurship, infrastructure investment, research, and tax policy. He also led efforts to establish and grow TechPAC, NVTC's state-level Political Action Committee.

Josh Levi is a member of the Board of Directors of the Virginia Technology Alliance (an organization of Virginia's 10 technology councils), the Northern Virginia Transportation Alliance (NVTA), and the Northern Virginia Economic Development Coalition. Mr. Levi is a former member of the Board of Directors of the Virginia Public Access Project (VPAP), a non-profit, non-partisan organization that leverages information technology to improve public access to campaign finance information in Virginia.

Josh Levi received his bachelor's degree in political science from Virginia Tech in 1995 and graduated cum laude from the University of Richmond School of Law in 1999. He is a member of the Virginia State Bar.
